

Probiotics play the important role of boosting the immune responses while the prebiotics provide a platform for the attachment of probiotic microbes along the walls of the gut, at the sites where harmful pathogenic microbes would have attached.