

Original text: A recent study has proved that when our planet was formed, water had already been there. However, a previous finding suggests that water came from somewhere else in the universe.