

1. Recognition memory is durable, lasting several weeks, for infants at about 3 months of age. (e.g. Rovee-Colliers mobile kicking studies in which there is evidence of a form of cued-recall in young infants such as sound, rattles).3.