

The video signal is then displayed directly (or digitized), post-processed in a computer and rendered for display.