

It's the person I was sharing the room with They had visitors very late at night The nurse allowed them to have visitors nearly at midnight, And the person kept pushing their bell , for very little reason For example, at 2 o'clock in the morning, they sent the nurse to go get food and the nurse comes back and brings food in at 230 am, this is disruptive to me So I had zero sleep, no sleep at all wait 30 minutes, push the bell, ask for another blanket, push the bell, ask to take temperature, push the bell, ask for food And I feel like the nurses could have done something to manage that and say, look, it's time to sleep now You know, you're being disruptive But they didn't They just kept on They allowed her to have visitors at midnight They went to fetch her food at 2 am, they should have managed that better
