

Source: The communication process begins with the source or the sender. He/she is the person who wants to convey their message. For example, when companies advertise their products, they are the ones creating the message and transmitting it.