

People communicate to share ideas, thoughts, and feelings with each other. Another way is through body language, like smiling, nodding, or using hand gestures, which can show how we feel without using words. People also write messages, like texting on phones, writing letters, or sending emails.