

The instructor introduces the computer science course, emphasizing its importance in today's technology-driven world. The course aims to build a strong foundation in computer science concepts and methods, covering topics from document design to algorithms and biology