

theories Dynamic approaches involve a search for the processes by which needs, motives, impulse often hidden from view interact to produce the individual's behavior, Freud's psychoanalysis " 1920 1949 " become both a theory of personality and method of psychotherapy psychoanalytic theory has three major parts . 1.a theory of structure of personality, in which the ego, id, and superego the principle parts . 2.a theory of personality dynamics, in which conscious and unconscious motivation and ego – defense mechanisms play a major role . 3.a theory of psychosexual development, in which different motives and body regions influence the child different stages of growth, with effects persisting in the form of adult personality traits . 1. Personality structure :