

Making a connection reduces anxiety, increases cooperation through exams and treatments, leads to good rapport (which is totally essential in better health outcomes).