

A mortgage is a type of loan specifically used for purchasing real estate. In essence, a mortgage enables individuals to buy property by providing a way to finance a substantial portion of the property's purchase price, spreading the cost over time while using the property itself as security for the loan.