Polysaccharides.These are high-molecular carbohydrates containing hundreds and even thousands of monosaccharide residues.Cellulose, starch and glycogen are widely known from homopolysaccharides.Cellulose (fiber) is not only the most common poly-saccharide, but also an organic substance in nature.Homopolysaccharides.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com