

Changes in average cost per service which is primarily due to inflation, as well as changes in provider reimbursement agreements, service severity mix, shifting of utilization among service categories (such as increased use of outpatient services versus inpatient services), medical practice patterns, increased use of expensive modern technology, and the expiration of patent protections