

A Puma at Large Pumas are, large, cat-like animals which are found in America. Paw prints were seen in a number of places and puma fur was found clinging to bushes. However, as the evidence began to accumulate, experts from the Zoo felt obliged to investigate, for the descriptions given by people who claimed to have seen the puma were extraordinarily similar. When reports came into London Zoo that a wild puma had been spotted forty-five miles south of London, they were not taken seriously. The search proved difficult, for the puma was often observed at one place in the morning and at another place twenty miles away in the evening. Wherever it went, it left behind it a trail of dead deer and small animals like rabbits.