

Muscle fatigue is the inability to maintain force of contraction after prolonged activity. It is a state of physiological inability to contract even though the muscle still may be receiving stimuli.