

To avoid reopening this discussion at the start of every week, or during work or personal hours, I would like to clarify that I cannot agree to work in another city without proper financial compensation. Additionally, the notion that an engineer's role is interchangeable with that of a geologist does not reflect the proper distinctions between these professions, especially considering the importance of professional memberships that cannot be disregarded for convenience.