

Wastewater* is used water that has been contaminated by various human activities. Once it's used, it typically becomes polluted with various substances, such as chemicals, pathogens, and organic matter, making it unsafe for direct use. It comes from households, industries, commercial establishments, and even stormwater runoff.