

Certainly! This setup facilitates efficient interaction and reporting relationships within the company. This shift allows for centralized control over its global e-commerce operations, crucial for a company with diverse business areas.