

In previous researches, the noise uncertainty was studied by setting limitation on the noise expansion coefficients by assuming that the lower noise expansion coefficients are equal to the reciprocal of the noise upper expansion coefficient [91]. However, under noise uncertainty conditions, The fluctuation of noise power leads to the deterioration of the detector's performance, and we can distinguish between two cases.