

Upon successful completion of this course, the student will. Do you do best in classes in which teachers do a lot of writing on the chalkboard, provide clear handouts, and make extensive use of an overhead projector? Introduction: Current educational reform involves changing the classroom from a teacher-centred to a student-centred environment: in other words, the learner is the primary focus of the instructional system, and understanding how students learn is an important part of selecting appropriate teaching strategies. Information enters your brain in three main ways: sight, hearing, and touch, which one you use the most is called your Learning Style. 2 years ago Bahrain 3- Visual learners learn by sight. A visual learner is the one who tends to observe things, pictures, films... Create movies in the mind during the reading process. Benefit from using maps, notes, and flashcards when studying. Pay more attention to facial expressions. They do not like noise, they need a calm environment to concentrate. Using color as a learning aid allows students to swiftly grasp new concepts. 1- Definition: Big infidels Learning style is described as a group of characteristics, attitudes and behaviours that define our way of learning. Three learning styles that are often identified in students are the Auditory Learning Style, the Visual Learning Style, and the Tactile Kinesthetic Learning Style.