Growing up in Gaza taught me that survival should not be an end in itself and that success is not a luxury but a moral and social responsibility.I seek to study for a master's degree in Italy because its educational system provides openness and research accuracy, and because the international experience gives it opportunities to interact with specialized experts and attend conferences and seminars that expand my scientific and cultural horizons.Once I return to Palestine, I will work to organize initiatives to support the security of educational institutions, provide security consultations .I also look forward to representing Palestine in international conferences specialized in cybersecurity and building professional networks that contribute to strengthening cooperation between Palestine and Italy in this field.My goal was not fame or awards, but to protect users and organizations from potential digital breaches.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com