

Santa Claus or "Santa Claus" is a fictional character associated with Christmas found among Christians, often known as an old man who is always happy, very fat and laughing, who wears a jacket that is overshadowed by red color and with white edges and covers his face with a bright white beard, and as is famous in children's stories, Santa Claus He lives in the North Pole with his wife, Mrs. Claus, and some dwarves who make him Christmas gifts, and deer that pull his magic sledge for him, and behind her gifts to be distributed to the children as he descends from the chimneys of house fireplaces or enters through open windows and small door cracks.