

Audiologists and speech–language pathologists (SLPs) are health–care professionals practice at several healthcare and educational settings including hospitals, clinics, rehabilitation centers, universities, and schools.