

Ongoing training and workplace safety procedures are essential to protect employee health and ensure a safe working environment, with the importance of regularly monitoring and evaluating these procedures to improve their effectiveness.