

Status and Trends of Biodiversity Overview The Kingdom of Saudi Arabia is about 1,969,000 km<sup>2</sup> in area making it the tenth largest country covering 1.64% of the land area of the world, and 8% of the land area of Asia. The varied biodiversity of Saudi Arabia stems from its pivotal location between Africa and Eurasia, which allows elements of both regions to intermingle.