

Palliative care refers to a comprehensive approach aimed at improving the quality of life for patients facing life-threatening and chronic illnesses, such as cancer. This approach focuses on providing holistic comfort to the patient, enhancing personal care, and improving psychological and social support to her and her family.