

Yes, we did, Lestrade. 'Today's newspaper has a new message from Pierrot – or Sherlock Holmes – in it,' he said. We met Mycroft and Lestrade near Caulfield Gardens. At eight o'clock that evening, Holmes and I took a cab to Kensington. 'Very good, Sherlock,' Mycroft answered with a big smile. So we're going to Caulfield Gardens tonight. But we did it for Britain!' Holmes answered. 'Well, the police do things differently,' said Lestrade. What do you think, Mycroft?'
