

Technological advancement is the improvement and innovation of the utility of science. For example, levers and pulleys are technology because they apply understandings of geometry and physics.