

This text describes a method for users to input knowledge into a system without requiring explicit coding by a knowledge engineer. This approach automates the knowledge acquisition process, making it more user-friendly and efficient.