

Poon Lim, a Chinese sailor, holds the world record for the longest time spent adrift at sea, having survived 133 days alone in the Atlantic Ocean during World War II. After his ship was torpedoed by a German U-boat, Poon managed to escape onto a life raft equipped with limited supplies.