How nature can be integrated into cities to achieve environmental and human benefits. I learned about the role of green spaces such as parks, trees and public gardens in improving air quality, which contributes to reducing temperatures, and supporting biodiversity. I also discovered how nature positively affects people's mental health, helps in relaxation and promotes sustainable living in cities.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com