he believes that computers will be able to think just like a person ΄s brain and he just has to live long enough so that he can take advantage of these invention and he believes that diet and exercise are the keys