

When the pH in rumen is more than 5.5, Ca-LCFA becomes inert. Ca-LCFA functions as an additional calcium source (Naik et al., 2007a; 2007b), has the highest intestinal digestibility, and is relatively less degradable in the rumen (Elmeddah et al., 1991; Dairy Technical Service Staff, 2002).