Process: It is a fraction of the program that is loaded in the main memory. To execute a whole program, instead of loading the whole program in the main memory, the CPU fetches and executes one instruction of a process after another.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com