

Forward contracts are negotiated agreements for the delivery or purchase of goods or currency at pre-agreed prices, quantities, and delivery dates, requiring physical delivery or net settlement. Net settlement ensures equal economic conditions for parties involved, with payment calculated based on the same conditions as if delivery had occurred.  $(\text{Market price} - \text{Contract price}) * \text{Quantity}$