

ChatGPT said: It is not realistic to expect real solutions to difficult health problems solely from the internet because the complexity of many medical issues requires professional diagnosis, personalized treatment, and ongoing care that cannot be reliably provided through online sources. Serious health problems often demand clinical expertise, laboratory tests, and careful monitoring, which online platforms cannot replicate.