

This type of contracts is suitable for straightforward work, such as the residential and commercial buildings of standard construction; work that can be fully illustrated and specified to provide a maximum of design information, and which will be carried out on sites having predictable conditions and offering a minimum risk.