

Their firsthand experiences and perspectives can provide qualitative evidence of how pay per performance influences motivation, job satisfaction, and performance levels.