

People who accept both risks and the opportunities involved in creating and operating a new business venture.