

She believes that it is pointless to anticipate grief and trauma as they will come into our lives regardless. She warns against the dangers of letting unwanted thoughts creep into an empty mind. She has learnt to reflect on the stability of her home with her family and children and is always grateful for her husband's patience with her