

Straight Wing The straight wing is a simple and straightforward design where the wing's leading and trailing edges are parallel to each other. This type of wing is commonly found in general aviation aircraft and is known for its stability and ease of control.