Organocuprates Li[CuR2],8 prepared by reaction of the organolithium compound with a Cu(I) salt such as Cul, do not Beliminate and are sufficiently nucleophilic, thanks to the net anionic charge, to attack a usefully wide variety of organic electrophiles. The structures of these reagents is still a matter of discussion, but oligomeric forms are likely to be present.