

My dream since I entered high school was to be a neurosurgeon, there was no one to encourage me, I used to hear broken words like, "You can't," "you're a girl, you can't be in a job like this," "it's so difficult, you won't be able to complete." But I did not give up, I was trying hard to reach my dream, I studied, I learned, and I understood. And now, I'm the smartest neurosurgeon in the whole world.
