

The analysis shows that depreciation, amortization, and depletion policies significantly impact energy sector companies' financial performance.