

Activities of Sequential Functions According to Mackenzie, a manager's sequential functions are divided into five areas--planning, organizing, staffing, directing, and controlling. Developing strategies: Deciding how and when to achieve goals 4. Setting objectives: Determining desired results 3.