

Connecticut Sun star Alyssa Thomas ejected for hard foul on Chicago Sky's Angel Reese. Chicago Sky rookie Angel Reese said before Saturday's WNBA game that she was looking forward to facing the Connecticut Sun's Alyssa Thomas and Brionna Jones, who she had watched when those two played at Maryland. As Reese was going up for a rebound in the third quarter, Thomas got her arm around the rookie's neck and knocked her down hard onto the court. Reese, who was making her home debut after being selected No. 7 overall by the Sky out of Louisiana State, grabbed her head and then her back after getting up. Thomas received a flagrant 2 foul and was ejected from the game. Reese made two free throws and subbed out, but was back for the fourth quarter. She didn't get too long to face Thomas. She finished the game with 13 points, tying her season best, but had no points in the fourth quarter. "Thank you AT for sending a message to me because I got back up and I kept going."