

The history of television goes back to eighteenth century. In 2009, HD televisions were introduced to the public in America. In 1907, the scientists developed a new kind of television.