

The process of establishing goals and developing plans within an organization is typically referred to as strategic planning.