

From the time of World War II (1939–45), DDT and other organic insecticides were used in large quantities. Tens of thousands of tons were produced every year.