

The contract is the commitment of the parties regarding the subject for which the contract was written, whether it is sale, purchase, or work. It expresses the process of offer and acceptance of the offer through its signature by the parties participating in the contract.